Coffee with Jesus

Coffee with Jesus by Lucinda Berry Hill is a great book to read and have at hand. Consisting of 52 poems intended to be read one per week, with brief concomitant Scripture readings, I found Ms Hill's poems to be simple in nature but highly inspirational, well-written and laid out in very readable format.

James Merritts's 52weeks with Jesus W is a worthy shelf-mate to Minears's volume. The book presents dozens of metaphors for Jesus and backs each one up with biblical references, commentaries, meditations, and prayers. This book has now been added to my quiver of secret weapons. I plan to gift it to others often.

Coffee with Jesus is a fascinating strip. Although not without humor, it's not really a gag-in-the-last-panel type of endeavor. I'd call it "cartoon philosophy", but that really does disservice to both cartoons and philosophy. The format is simple: people talk to Jesus while having coffee, and Jesus always has the final word.
